Consumer Outreach

Describe consumer outreach efforts in the past 12 months: Centennial divides its handsets into three levels of functionality: Basic, Enhanced and Premium. Phones are categorized based on two criteria – pricing and features offered. The characteristics of each level are described below:

Basic – Handsets in this category have price points up to $150. Features offered on handsets in this category are simple handsets with no cameras to a handset with a VGA camera; Bluetooth and speakerphone options. From a design perspective, Basic handsets can be a bar or flip-phone.

Enhanced – Handsets in this category have price points from $150 to $300. Features offered on handsets in this category include camera with 1 to 1.3 mega pixels; Bluetooth, EVDO and MP3.

Premium - Handsets in this category include any handset exceeding $300. Features offered on handsets in this category include camera phones with at least 1.3 mega pixels and/or video capability; Stereo Bluetooth; touch screens; EVDO; MP3, personal organizers.

Methodology for Functionality Levels

Centennial sales and customer representatives have been made aware of the HAC requirements and trained to assist existing and potential customers identifying HAC handsets offered by Centennial. Further, each HAC handset available in stores is identified with a special HAC label, and HAC is described within the accompanying promotional brochure material. Within Centennial stores, signs are posted highlighting the availability of HAC handsets.

Report Remarks

Hearing aid compatible models are currently identified on the AT&T website:

<http://www.wireless.att.com/learn/articles-resources/disability-resources/hearing-aid-compatibility.jsp>. Centennial is now using the AT&T device portfolio, and the Centennial website reroutes to AT&T.* In 2009, prior to the rerouting of consumers to AT&T's website, Centennial provided information concerning hearing aid compatible models at www.centennialwireless.com/hac_handsets.php, www.centennialpr.com/web/wireless/hac.asp, and www.centennialpr.com/web/wireless/phones.asp. Centennial plans to continue to support and make available hearing aid compatible models for those markets that will be divested.

*AT&T is filing an HAC report independently for Centennial because Centennial was not part of AT&T for most of 2009.
